The Right Honourable Richard Wagner is the 18th Chief Justice of Canada. As such, he presides over the Canadian Judicial Council and the National Judicial Institute and chairs the Advisory Council for the Order of Canada. Chief Justice Wagner was president of the Association des Cours Constitutionnelles Francophones from 2019 to 2022. As a litigator, he argued cases before every level of court in Quebec, and quasi-judicial tribunals, as well as the Federal Court and the Supreme Court of Canada. Throughout his legal career, he led initiatives to help lawyers constantly upgrade their skills and knowledge, such as the creation of the Centre d'accès à l'information juridique, for which he was awarded the Mérite du Barreau du Québec. He also received Doctor of Laws honoris causa degrees from the Faculty of Law of the University of Ottawa, the Law Society of Ontario, Western University and the Université du Québec à Chicoutimi. In recognition of his longstanding contribution to the advancement of the law, the Bar of Montreal awarded him its highest distinction, the Medal of the Bar of Montreal, in 2022. In addition, for his outstanding contribution to upholding and promoting the rule of law, the World Jurist Association presented him with its Medal of Honor at a ceremony at the United Nations in New York in 2023. Most recently, in 2024, France awarded him the insignia of Commander of the national order of the Legion of Honour, the country's highest decoration, for his exemplary services to the cause of justice.

Chief Justice Wagner was appointed a judge of the Superior Court of Quebec in 2004 and the Quebec Court of Appeal in 2011. In 2012, he was appointed to the Supreme Court of Canada. He was sworn in as Chief Justice of Canada on December 18, 2017.

Closing

In July 1987, over 200 experts from Australia, Canada, the United Kingdom, New Zealand, other Commonwealth countries, the United States, Europe, and Israel gathered at the Inns of Court in London to discuss the reform of criminal law and the criminal justice system. Over the course of the London conference, the participants analyzed the sources and the possible outcomes of movements for criminal law reform which had developed in their own countries. They examined the present need for reform; the social context for reform; the general principles which should form its basis; and how reforms should be accomplished. Delegates also looked at possible specific reforms in a number of areas. At the conclusion of the London conference, the participants called for the establishment of an international body to bring together those actively working for the improvement of the criminal law and the administration of criminal justice. A number of the participants took up that challenge and founded the ISRCL in January 1988.

The ISRCL is a non-profit charitable association incorporated under the laws of Canada. In the discussions that led to its formation, the founders were strongly of the view that the ISRCL must retain its independence of thought and action from government. Accordingly, the ISRCL's key activities and its member services are primarily funded by an annual membership levy and donations. The ISRCL does, however, solicit financial assistance for specific conferences, seminars, or projects from government departments, agencies, law foundations, and other foundations. Funding for specific projects has been obtained from The British Council, the Departments of Justice of Canada and New Zealand, The Home Office, the Attorney General's Department of Australia, the Victoria Law Foundation, the Law Foundation of British Columbia, the Law Foundation of Nova Scotia, and the Canadian International Development Agency. The Law Reform Commission of Canada, the Correctional Service of Canada, and the British Columbia Corrections Branch have also provided important material and financial assistance in the past.
